

MIZARELLI PRODUCTIONS

HERE IS WHAT IS NEW...

14/09/2015

Hello students! Let's begin the week with a bang. Most of you have received your IDs and passwords for our site, if you have not, do not worry you will shortly. We have a special Numbers lesson prepared. Keep an eye in your mailbox! Have a blockbuster week!

VERB OF THE WEEK

To Presume, Presumed

[pri-zoom]

verb (used with object), presumed, presuming.

1. to take for granted, assume, or suppose: I presume you're tired after your drive.

2. Law. to assume as true in the absence of proof to the contrary.

3. to undertake with unwarrantable boldness.

4. to undertake (to do something) without right or permission:

to presume to speak for another.

verb (used without object), presumed, presuming.

5. to take something for granted; suppose.

6. to act or proceed with unwarrantable or impertinent boldness.

7. to go too far in acting unwarrantably or in taking liberties (usually followed by on or upon):

Do not presume upon his tolerance.

WORD OF THE WEEK

Presumption:

[pri-zuhmp-shuh n]

noun

1. the act of presuming.

2. assumption of something as true.

The world is changing...are you?

WWW.MIZARELLI.COM

3.belief on reasonable grounds or probable evidence.

4.something that is presumed; an assumption.

PHRASAL VERB OF THE WEEK

To Slip In...

- to discreetly include information or enter a location unnoticed

While telling her boss that she had scored the new contract for the company, Sarah slipped in the fact that she will go on vacation for two extra days.

Brian and John were uninvited to a big party in town. They thought they could have slipped in dressed as waiters but were busted at the door.

When Jenerish asked her fiancé to sign a prenuptial agreement, she tried to slip in an adultery clause without telling him. This was not going well from the start.

EXPRESSION OF THE WEEK

To Judge a Book by it's Cover: Do not judge a person or situation by how it first comes across Estella is very old fashioned, and did not approve an interracial marriage. So when her daughter told her she was getting married to man outside of these close Chinese race, she nearly had a heart attack. With time, she got to know the groom and realized she could not have been more wrong.

When Teddy first began working at the biggest law office in town, people did not have a lot of expectations for him. His stature was small and he barely spoke, but after a few months, people realized that judging a book by its cover was wrong. He was winning most of the firm's cases.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

“Success is never final and failure never fatal. It's courage that counts.” –George F. Tilton

DID YOU KNOW?

Did you know that in China if you accept a gift when first given you are presumed desperate?

The world is changing...are you?

WWW.MIZARELLI.COM